

Charlie Nave

DIRECTOR OF TECHNICAL SERVICES

Charlie Nave, Director of Technical Services, has an extensive background in bread and bun production. He joined Milner Milling in 2004, which later became Grain Craft when the company purchased Cereal Food Processors. Nave is a graduate of the American Institute of Baking and has gained hands on experience through his service in many roles throughout the baking industry.

Prior to joining Grain Craft, Nave owned a consulting business in which he conducted bakery overviews and evaluations to improve efficiencies and product quality.

From 2000 - 2002 Nave held a Plant Manager position with Meyer's bakery in Arkansas and from 1996 -2000 he served as Director of Manufacturing for Earthgrains bakery in Georgia. Prior to his time at Earthgrains, Nave served in various positions with Campbell Taggart - which at one time was the nation's second largest producer of baked goods.

In his current role with Grain Craft, Nave oversees the technical services group. He also works in the field with customers as a resource to help troubleshoot and resolve dough issues that may arise in the bakery.
